

Young Pharmaceuticals Now Accepts Cryptocurrency for Private-Label Skincare and Aesthetic Technologies

Wethersfield, CT – March 5, 2025

Young Pharmaceuticals, Inc., a leading developer of private label and practice-branded skincare solutions for dermatologists and plastic surgeons, is proud to announce the acceptance of cryptocurrency payments for its full line of aesthetic products and technologies. Young moves to the forefront of digital innovation, offering dispensing physicians greater flexibility and security in their transactions.

Since its founding in 1977, Young Pharmaceuticals has been committed to delivering high-quality, science-driven skincare formulations to physicians worldwide. By integrating cryptocurrency payment options, the company is responding to the evolving financial landscape and catering to the growing demand for seamless, digital-first transactions among its physician partners.

“This is a significant step forward in aligning our business with modern financial trends,” said John Kulesza, CEO and chief formulating officer at Young Pharmaceuticals. “As the aesthetic industry continues to evolve, we recognize the need to provide our partners with more convenient, efficient, and secure payment methods. Accepting cryptocurrency empowers our customers with greater financial autonomy while maintaining the high level of service they expect from Young.”

Digital asset payments will streamline transactions for dermatologists and plastic surgeons who dispense Young Pharmaceuticals’ innovative skincare formulations and aesthetic technologies. This initiative supports the company’s ongoing mission to provide cutting-edge solutions in product development and customer experience and allows further expansion of its international operations by providing a fast and efficient way to transact with customers worldwide.

Young Pharmaceuticals will accept a range of leading cryptocurrencies, including Bitcoin (BTC) and Ethereum (ETH), ensuring ease of use and enhanced transactional security.

About Young Pharmaceuticals, Inc.

Young Pharmaceuticals, Inc., based in Wethersfield, CT, has been a trusted name in medical skincare since 1977. Specializing in private label and practice-branded skincare solutions, Young leverages pharmaceutical chemistry expertise to formulate transformative treatments for dermatologists and plastic surgeons. The company remains dedicated to providing high-quality, innovative skincare products to dispensing physicians worldwide.

For media inquiries: Contact Jennifer Barnes @ jbarnes@youngpharm.com